Generations through Vinyl Records

Context: The Speas and Moore family have gathered an extensive vinyl record collection that spans over four generations. This collection is an attempt to organize these records as well as show how popular music has changed over time.

Content: This collection contains full color photographs of the vinyl record itself, including the center label, as well as the album cover, including the frontside, inside, and backside.

Users: This collection is intended for use by anyone who is interested in music trends, vintage records, or how music tastes can be developed from a past generation to a current one (i.e. from a parent to their child.)
